“ Known as Jack to his family and friends, Jack was a miracle baby born weighing just over a pound and with the care of his loving mother, survived against all odds. He attended the tiny Columbiaville school and was transported there by covered wagon and later attended St. Mary’s in Hudson, NY. He married Jane Brosky in June of 1942. An ear infection in childhood caused hearing damage and rendered Jack unfit for the military draft of WWII. He jokingly referred to himself as “General of the Homefront.” He and Jane went on to have 4 children. Judith, Jean, John, and Jay. Jack was witty and funny and known to enjoy a drink or two in his day. His company was always assured of much laughter. His compassion for others and a ready to help those on need was his modus operandi. God must have rewarded him with such a long life for his kindness. His passing was celebrated by many that attended his service, especially by his 4 Devoted children. Jack was a much loved man. As his daughter, Jay, I miss him daily. Love you Dad. XO
