“ Maureen and I were practically cousins. We were closer than all of my blood cousins. We spent many night on the phone and in person talking about everything from people we knew to the worlds problems. This breaks my heart to have to write on here. I'm going to be real, she had flaws just like all of us, but she was a loving mother and person. Every time I came home I knew I could and would stop at her house unannounced and the door was always open. She would always tell me how Victoria and JJ were doing. In person you could see her face light up when she talked about them and over the phone you could hear the pride and love in her voice. I miss her greatly and it hurts to be 800 miles away. I love Maureen like family because she is. I know she is looking down and smiling on the two amazing children she brought into this world and the family and friends that love her. I will never forget her and I pray no one does. ”

I only met Maureen this year, her daughter Victoria is a manager in my restaurant, and a wonderful young lady. As you know, when you meet young people these days, based almost upon your initial introduction, "you can always tell from where they came". This Christmas, I received a holiday card from one staff member, it was Vicky. I was so moved because she took the time to get a card, and then in handwritten form personalized it with a lovely holiday note. I was stunned, and said wow.. "that's class". No one takes the time to write a handwriting note anymore. As the year went by, I got to know Maureen better. She would help us out in a bartending jam, and often popped in visiting Vic, just to say hi. She was funny, "sassy", smart, and well-read. She was truly a mamma bear, and loved to speak about her children. And as a mamma bear does, she protected her children, taught them right from wrong, and moreover imparted them with class and respect.

Fast forward to last week... It was the Easter holiday, and I sent home a Ham with Victoria, as I do for my staff on Holidays. Well Vicky was elated and Maureen was so delighted (probably because she didn't have to stand in line at the store) she actually took the time to send me a handwritten thank you note the next day. Again, I ask, "who does that"? Well, at that point, I knew exactly from where Victoria came... Rest in peace, Maureen, I only wished we spent more time together—you were awesome! Maureen- mamma bear, you are missed, rest in peace. My deepest and sincere condolences to Vicky and her family. Peace..
