“ Michael, I met your father before I was a teenager becoming neighbors, swimming in your grandparent's pool on hot summer days, shooting pool in their basement of Friday nights while they were bowling, riding tractors through the orchards (did you know he broke my foot while riding on a wagon) finally graduating to field cars bought a Windy's junkyard we really did have a blast. I remember when you were born how proud your father was of you and still is. The last few times I saw your father he always mentioned his Grandson Dominic with a proud smile. As we age and find new friends we tend to see our childhood friends less and less, but we are always friends. I know it is not easy to lose a parent, but life goes on. Grandma used to say Scott DeLaurentis marched to the beat of his own drum and it worked out for him. Life will go on and you will reflect on the good and bad but always remember he loved you and so do I. So fifty years has slipped by I will miss your father but he will always have a place in my heart as will you. If you ever need a father figure in the future, I will be here for you. Love Uncle Donald

“ Scott I wish I knew my last visit to NY would be the last time we would spend time together. We shared so many experiences growing up and growing older from horse play and work, marriages and child birth, buying and building homes to burying parents and pets. You will always be a special part of my memories as you were always a special part of my life. I only wish I could have told you in person how much you meant to me and that I loved you for who you were. You will be truly missed but never forgotten my friend.....
